Future Meets Experience

Anna Kemp

Originally from Britain, Anna Kemp studied English at Oxford before moving to Spain in 1992. She worked as head of teaching resources in a Business English Academy for a couple of years while she grappled with learning Spanish and then started work as a Script Supervisor in the Spanish film & TV industry.

She worked for television giants, GloboMedia, as well as on several Spanish and English language feature films, before starting a family. Her final film, South from Granada, directed by Fernando Colomo and based on the life of writer Gerald Brennan, took her to the Alpujarra mountains near Granada... and introduced her to the next chapter of her life.

In 2014, together with the local community of a small village in the Alpujarra mountains, she built a beautiful, handcrafted stone amphitheatre to bring some economic and cultural sparkle to a remote, rural area through sustainable tourism. She is now in the process of organising the second edition of their theatre, dance and music festival, “Me Vuelves Lorca”.

She runs the project with the help of her friend, Jana Sánchez Sánchez.
